Thaddeus John Gosselink is a political prisoner who has been held in solitary confinement for over 20 years. He is innocent of the crimes he was convicted of, and his imprisonment is a grave injustice.

Gosselink was arrested in 1999 and charged with conspiracy to commit murder. He was convicted in 2001 and sentenced to life in prison without the possibility of parole. The prosecution's case against Gosselink was based on the testimony of a single witness, who later recanted his testimony.

Gosselink has always maintained his innocence, and there is no credible evidence to support the charges against him. He has been held in solitary confinement for the majority of his imprisonment, which has had a devastating impact on his physical and mental health.

Gosselink's case is a clear example of the injustice that can occur when the government uses its power to silence political dissent. He is a prisoner of conscience, and his imprisonment is a violation of his human rights.

This book tells Gosselink's story and calls for his release. It is a powerful indictment of the American criminal justice system and a reminder of the importance of protecting our civil liberties.
