With the keen eye of a master storyteller, Smith delves into the intriguing lives of an eclectic cast of characters, each with their own captivating tale to tell. From the enigmatic Aimee Semple McPherson, the flamboyant "Sister Aimee" who captivated the nation with her evangelical fervor, to the enigmatic Howard Hughes, the reclusive aviation pioneer and eccentric billionaire, the book weaves together a captivating narrative that sheds new light on the human tapestry of American history.

Exploring the Lives of the Fabulous and the Forgotten

The Fabulous:

* Aimee Semple McPherson: A charismatic evangelist and founder of the Foursquare Church, "Sister Aimee" captivated audiences with her fiery sermons and claims of divine healing. Her flamboyant lifestyle and sensationalistic campaigns made her both an object of adulation and controversy. * Phineas Taylor Barnum: Known as the "Prince of Humbug," Barnum was a master showman and entrepreneur. His circus, featuring bizarre attractions like the "Fiji Mermaid" and the "Human Cannonball," drew millions of spectators and forever changed the face of American entertainment. * Howard Hughes: A brilliant aviation pioneer and enigmatic billionaire, Hughes's life was characterized by both triumph and tragedy. His legendary aircraft designs and record-breaking flights earned him worldwide acclaim, while his reclusive lifestyle and eccentric behavior became the stuff of legend.

The Famous:

* Carrie Nation: A fierce temperance advocate, Nation gained notoriety for her confrontational tactics. Armed with a hatchet, she smashed saloons and liquor stores, earning her the title "Carry Nation, the Bar-Smasher." Her crusade against alcohol abuse made her both an object of ridicule and a symbol of moral reform. * Buffalo Bill Cody: A legendary frontiersman, Cody's exploits as a buffalo hunter and Pony Express rider captured the imagination of a nation hungry for tales of the Wild West. His popular Wild West show toured the world, showcasing the rugged spirit and heroism of the American frontier. * Henry Ford: A visionary industrialist, Ford revolutionized the automotive industry with his Model T, making the automobile accessible to the masses. His mass-production techniques and innovative assembly lines had a profound impact on American society and the global economy.

The Feared:

* Al Capone: A ruthless gangster and Prohibition kingpin, Capone controlled organized crime in Chicago during the Roaring Twenties. His bootlegging empire, fueled by violence and corruption, made him one of the most notorious criminals in American history. * Jesse James: A notorious outlaw and bank robber, James became a folk hero in the post-Civil War era. His daring heists and relentless pursuit by law enforcement captivated the nation, blurring the lines between law and legend. * Joseph McCarthy: A demagogic senator, McCarthy led the infamous "Red Scare" of the 1950s. His unsubstantiated accusations of communist infiltration in government and society created a climate of fear and suspicion that left an enduring mark on American politics.

The Forgotten:

* Mary Rowlandson: A Puritan woman captured by Native Americans during King Philip's War, Rowlandson's captivity narrative provides a firsthand account of life among the Wampanoag and the horrors of frontier warfare. * Nancy Ward: A Cherokee leader and peacemaker, Ward played a pivotal role in negotiating treaties between her people and the American government. Her diplomacy and advocacy helped preserve Cherokee rights and traditions amid the turmoil of westward expansion. * Robert Smalls: A former slave who rose to become a ship's captain during the Civil War, Smalls' daring raid on a Confederate vessel earned him the Medal of Honor. His subsequent political career as a South Carolina legislator and congressman marked him as a pioneer of African American empowerment.
